Andrew Grey's Stranded is completely different from any other of his books that I have read. That isn't a complaint. It's a compliment because he can write so differently and yet it is still a wonderful book. How does he do that? Stranded is made up of at least three subplots. The first subplot is about a Broadway actor who is hired as the lead in a movie. It is his first movie and he ...

Lucky for me, Andrew Grey knew exactly how to approach it and make it interesting and enjoyable. This is my first Andrew Grey novel. I have to say I found Grey's writing like lube for the eyes. It eases you right in to the story. Even the tight spots. I would place Stranded squarely in the m/m romance genre, which is not my 'go to' fiction. It has a light touch, which is amazing, given ...

The helplessness, loneliness, and fear of being stranded that way had me shaking and I couldn't get those feelings to go away until I'd written the scene. Howard Justinian has always had to fight for his freedom. Because he was born blind, everyone is always trying to shelter him, but he's determined to live his life on his own terms. When an argument with his boyfriend over that hard ...
